$515K

The median price of a condo in a dozen downtown neighborhoods — including Beacon Hill, Fenway, the North End and South Boston — rose to $515,000 in the second quarter of 2012.
That number comes from data released yesterday by LINK, a Boston company that tracks the downtown condo market. LINK also reported that the number of luxury condo sales during the past three months increased by 22.2 percent. METRO

Boston Globe announces staff cuts

BOSTON. The Boston Globe reported on Monday that it offered buyout packages to 43 editorial and advertising employees and laid off about 10 people.

Twenty-three advertising employees and 20 newsroom employees are eligible for the voluntary buyouts, and the layoffs did not affect reporters or editors in the newsroom, the report said. GLOBE

After odor, body found

BROCKTON. An elderly veteran was found dead in his Brockton Housing Authority apartment only after neighbors complained about a foul smell for two weeks.

The man was found dead Saturday night after residents finally called police, according to the Brockton Enterprise.

The housing authority told the Enterprise that employees checked the odor twice. Once they found a dead mouse, and another time they found an odor coming from a garbage chute. METRO

Patrick mulls parole bill

MASSACHUSETTS. Gov. Deval Patrick yesterday suggested he was wrestling with the possibility of signing an anti-crime and sentencing reform bill that proposes to eliminate parole for certain three-time felons if he can get a commitment from House and Senate leaders to revisit some of the sentencing and parole issues left unaddressed by the compromise legislation. Is this neighborhood forgotten by the feds?

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

▶ Federal and state officials toured the Bowdoin/Geneva neighborhood of Dorchester yesterday.

As the Rev. Jack Ahern walked down Bowdoin Street yesterday, not far from the Dorchester parish he oversees, he talked about other Boston neighborhoods that have seen a revitalization.

He rattled off Dudley Square, Codman Square and other areas that have recently changed, and while he said the Bowdoin Street/Geneva Avenue area has also improved, he acknowledged "the area is still a challenge."

"Some see this as a forgotten part of the city," Ahern said. "It's the last part of the city that's not been addressed in a major way yet."

Yesterday, the area was in the spotlight as Ahern and other neighborhood and city leaders gave a tour to federal officials examining the city's youth violence prevention strategies.

Boston is one of six cities, and the only city in the Northeast, to participate in a forum on youth violence prevention that was an initiative of the Obama administration.

As part of the forum, Boston shares its best practices and strategies to combat youth violence with federal officials. The city also receives nearly $10 million in grants over five years.

"We're here because Boston is part of the solution when it comes to [youth violence prevention]," said acting Associate Attorney General Tony West.

Part of the solution to combat violence, neighborhood leaders said, is inclusivity.

The number of homicides so far this year in the police district that includes the Bowdoin-Geneva neighborhood. At this time last year there were six homicides, according to the latest police data.

Ahern attributed the improvements that have been made in the area to Mayor Thomas Menino gathering neighborhood groups and city officials together.

First thoughts of the Bowdoin/Geneva neighborhood, especially for those who do not live or work there, typically consist of crime and abandoned buildings.

But Ronald Lammy, president of Bowdoin Geneva Main Streets, pointed out a Bowdoin Street market that was under new ownership and had recently put up new, bright signs as a signal of changes coming to the neighborhood.

Lammy said the presence of the federal officials throughout the neighborhood would be a welcome sight for some residents and business owners, but would also be greeted with cynicism by others.

WFNX dead, 101.7 The Harbor takes control of the airwaves

Boston's newest radio station launched yesterday afternoon on 101.7 FM, ending the nearly three decade reign of the city's beloved alt-rock station WFNX.

At about 4:30 p.m., The Harbor tweeted about its takeover.

"Hey Boston, check us out at 101.7FM! #WePlayAnything We wanna know: What do YOU want to hear?" the station tweeted from @1017theharbor.

A playlist on the station's website and its most recent songs were empty yesterday afternoon. However, a brief listen to the new station revealed a very diverse — and very different — playlist compared to its predecessor.

The station played "Hot Blooded" by Foreigner, followed by "Keep Your Hands to Yourself" by Georgia Satellites and "Good Vibrations" by Marky Mark and the Funky Bunch during a brief listen yesterday afternoon.

WFNX's final broadcast was Friday evening. It's last song — The Cure's "Let's Go to Bed" — was also its first.

After that sign-off, the station continued through the weekend and until yesterday afternoon as an automated version of WFNX.

Rumors about the future of 101.7 FM varied from it turning into a Republican talk station to a Spanish language station after false websites were created.

Phoenix Media/Communications Group sold the station earlier this year for more than $14 million to Clear Channel.

WFNX continued to stream online yesterday. METRO/MN

MBTA police give $2,500 in fines to DTX fare evaders

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI /METRO

▶ MBTA Police Lt. Chris Maynard was one of the uniformed officers monitoring the turnstiles at Park Street yesterday.

Undercover MBTA officers meandered around the entrances at Park Street station during rush hour yesterday, keeping a keen eye on the turnstiles.

By 5 p.m., they had issued 16 tickets to fare evaders.

"Most of the people doing it are teenagers," said Officer Juan Quiroz as he waited by Park Street's unmanned Winter Street exit. "They know where the weak spots are. They think nobody will see them."

In response to what MBTA police describe as a public call for stricter fare enforcement, officers are cracking down on riders who hop free rides.

MBTA police kicked off Operation Fare Game during rush hour Monday by citing 51 people they caught, on separate occasions, dodging fare at Downtown Crossing.

Last night, the Park Street blitz was expected to catch about as many fare dodgers.

The $50 tickets were issued from 4 to 7 both nights by plain-clothes and uniformed officers who were staked out at every entrance of the stations.

"We can't be everywhere all the time, but we could be anywhere at any time," said Superintendent Joseph O'Connor on the method of using plain-clothes officers to nab fare dodgers.

The primary method of evasion, O'Connor said, was "piggybacking," when a person enters the gate immediately after someone else.

Police said a Quincy man who was caught piggybacking was arrested on a warrant.

Fare dodgers on Monday were also caught jumping over the gates and triggering the gates to open by reaching over and waving an object in front of the motion detectors on the other side.

"Most of our riders are honest, hard-working people. Those who evade fares make up a small percentage of our riders," O'Connor said. "People have said that they're paying for their passes, and they believe, as we do, that everyone should be paying."

MBTA spokesman Joshua Robin said the increased efforts to crack down on fare evasion have been in place across the transit system, particularly with "fare blitzes" on the Green Line.

A group calling itself Boston Fare Strike recently protested July's 23 percent fare hike by holding open gates for hundreds of riders. The group has said it plans to hold similar demonstrations on a weekly basis, which they have dubbed Fare Free Fridays.

"The bottom line on those fare evasion activities is that they only hurt the system, and other riders, and frankly they are disrespectful to riders," Robin said.

Coakley asks Supreme Court to deny DOMA

MASSACHUSETTS. Saying that the Defense of Marriage Act is "pervasive discrimination," Attorney General Martha Coakley urged the Supreme Court to strike down the anti-gay marriage law.

"If the Supreme Court chooses to examine this case, we will look forward to once again making clear that DOMA and its pervasive discrimination is unconstitutional and should be ended," Coakley said in a statement yesterday.

Coakley's office filed a brief with the Supreme Court urging that justices strike down DOMA after those backing the law asked the justices to review the case. The First Circuit Court of Appeals rejected the law earlier this year. METRO

History of DOMA

- In July 2010, DOMA was ruled unconstitutional by the United States District Court.
- On May 31, 2012, the First Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the lower court ruling.
- On June 29, 2012, the defendants requested the U.S. Supreme Court review and hear arguments of the case.

HIV soaring among Hub's black gay men

Study results released Monday by the HIV Prevention Trials Network showed disturbing rates of new HIV infections occurring among black gay and bisexual men in Boston and five other cities in the U.S., particularly among young black men.

The findings were presented at the 2012 International AIDS Conference.

Between 2009 and 2011, a total of 1,553 gay or bisexual men were studied in Boston, Atlanta, New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington, D.C. Of those men, 237 were from the Boston area.

The study shows that the rate of new HIV infection among black gay or bisexual men was 2.8 percent per year, a rate that is nearly 50 percent higher than in white gay or bisexual men in the U.S.

The study also found that black gay or bisexual men who were 30 years of age and younger became infected with HIV at a rate of 5.9 percent each year, which is three times the rate among white gay or bisexual men.

"For those of use who have been doing this work this isn't a surprise. I think the study reinforces what we knew," said Rebecca Haag, CEO of AIDS Action Committee of Massachusetts. "I think what it means for Boston is that we really need to engage the black community as a whole in this epidemic even more. We need to get the black churches more involved, and other civic organizations, to recognize that this disease is killing their young men. And we need the community to embrace what's going on, and urge all young men they know to get tested — and if they test positive, to get into care."

The Fenway Institute worked with the Multicultural AIDS Coalition on the study.

"We found that the men had many unmet medical and social service needs," said Dr. Kenneth Mayer, medical research director at the Fenway Institute.

Belmont raises smoking age

BELMONT. Starting next month you must be at least 19 years old to buy cigarettes in Belmont.

The suburban town's Board of Health recently decided to raise the legal age to buy tobacco products in the town from 18 to 19, according to the Belmont Citizen-Herald.

Part of the rationale behind the age change is that it would be easier for school officials to keep cigarettes and tobacco products out of school. Students who turned 18 just before graduation could buy the products and easily share them with other students. METRO

Wife of man critically hurt in Colorado shooting gives birth

KEVORK DJANSEZIAN/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Police say Holmes, dressed in a gas mask and body armor and toting three guns, opened fire in the packed theater shortly after the film began.

The wife of a man critically wounded in Friday's shooting rampage at a screening of the latest "Batman" film in Colorado gave birth to a baby boy yesterday, hospital officials said.

Katie Medley was with her husband Caleb at the midnight premiere of "The Dark Knight Rises" in the Denver suburb of Aurora when police say James Holmes opened fire, killing 12 people and wounding 58 others.

"The family is excited to say that Hugo Jackson Medley was born at 7:11 a.m. this morning. Both mom and baby are doing great."

SPOKESWOMAN FOR UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO DENVER HOSPITAL

Caleb Medley was shot in the head and remains in critical condition. A website set up to raise money for his care, www.calebmedley.com/help, said he has lost his right eye, has some brain damage and is in a medically induced coma.

A spokeswoman for University of Colorado Denver Hospital relayed the following statement from the family: "The family is excited to say that Hugo Jackson Medley was born at 7:11 (a.m. Mountain Time) this morning. Both mom and baby are doing great."

Holmes made his initial court appearance on Monday. He will be formally charged on July 30.

Apartment like a 'house bomb'

The booby-trapped apartment of the man accused of killing 12 people and wounding 58 others in last week's movie theater shooting in Colorado was effectively a "house bomb" rarely seen outside of war zones, a former FBI agent said yesterday.

James Holmes' 800-square-foot apartment in was so extensively wired with explosives and other devices that bomb experts needed to use a small, remote-controlled detonation to prevent a blast that likely would have consumed the entire three-story building, officials said.

Efforts to cut risky sexual behavior by teens stall

WASHINGTON. Efforts to reduce risky sexual behavior among U.S. high school students have stalled in the past decade and urgent action is needed to stem HIV infection rates in young people.

The National Youth Risk Behavior Survey, released by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention on Tuesday, analyzed 20 years of national HIV-related risk behavior data on U.S. high school students primarily between the ages of 14 and 17.

It found that while progress was made in the 1990s, when a decline was seen in the number of students who admitted to having multiple sexual partners, those rates have held steady since 2001.

State Farm sues in bid to avoid Sandusky legal bills

Insurer State Farm said it should be exempt from paying for legal bills arising from former Penn State assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky's child sexual abuse case.

State Farm Fire and Casualty Co. sold Sandusky a homeowner policy and filed a federal lawsuit last week arguing that the policy does not cover injuries caused by intentional, willful or malicious acts.

The State Farm policy provided limited personal liability coverage.

State Farm began insuring the home in 1985 for Sandusky and his wife, Dottie, according to the complaint filed in the U.S. District Court for Middle District of Pennsylvania.

The company asked that the court declare that the policy did not cover legal costs for his criminal defense or civil lawsuits arising from the case.

Federal Insurance Co., which covers the Second Mile, the charity Sandusky founded for at-risk youth in 1977, is making payments for his defense, Sandusky's attorney Brian Osias said last week.

The NCAA fined Pennsylvania State University $60 million on Monday in an unprecedented rebuke for the school's failure to stop Sandusky's sexual abuse.

In a sign of potential financial fallout from the NCAA move, Moody's Investors Service said it might cut Penn State's Aa1 revenue bond rating. REUTERS

Apple claims $2.5B from Samsung

Disappointing sales of iPhones ahead of new release hit share price

SAN FRANCISCO. Apple reported a rare miss in quarterly revenue that fell short of Wall Street's estimates on lower than expected sales of its flagship iPhones, sending its shares down 5 percent.

Apple sold 26 million iPhones during the quarter compared to an expected 28 million to 29 million as buyers held off ahead of the latest version of the smartphone, which will be released in September.

By contrast, the company sold 35.1 million iPhones in the March quarter. The company said fiscal third-quarter revenue rose to $35 billion, much lower than the average analyst estimate of $37.22 billion. REUTERS

Jackson family drama reaches new heights

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

▶ In December, Katherine Jackson and her family were all smiles in Vegas.

At first, we were barely tuning in to the latest Jackson drama — in a big, famous, creative family, someone is bound to kidnap grandma and start a Twitter war. But now, things are getting crazy, even by Jackson standards.

Now that matriarch Katherine Jackson surfaced in Arizona with family after being reported missing, the focus is turning to Michael's children. Katherine is the legal guardian of her late son's three children, and 14-year-old Paris — along with various extended family members — isn't buying that her grandmother is on a health retreat.

On Monday, Paris posted to her Twitter account: "Eight days and counting. Something is really off, this isn't like her at all. I wanna talk directly to my grandmother!" She followed up with a more threatening message yesterday: "So help me God I will make whoever did this pay."

A court-appointed attorney is involved with working out a temporary custody arrangement for the kids after Janet, Randy and Jermaine Jackson reportedly attempted to remove them from their L.A. home and police were called.

Now, it could be that 82-year-old Katherine is incredibly lucky to have children who are fighting to live with and take care of her. But there's also the matter of Michael's multimillion-dollar estate, which she has a stake in — and its executors are critical of Janet and company.

"We are acutely concerned about the welfare of Mrs. Jackson, and most particularly with Michael's children," executors John Branca and John McClain said in a statement. "We are concerned that we do what we can to protect them from undue influences, bullying, greed and other unfortunate circumstances."

Signs your family is in serious trouble: Michael Jackson turns out to be the one most capable of raising children and handling fame.

$18M payday for Mimi

Mariah Carey doesn't come cheap. This singer will rake in a cool $18 million for gracing the judging table on "American Idol" next season, which is $6 million more than Jennifer Lopez was paid to occupy the same chair.

It's not the first time Carey has paid a visit to "Idol" — she served briefly as a mentor on the show in 2008, and wasn't necessarily a low-maintenance employee. Sources tell TMZ that she was "a nightmare to work with," "not very nice at all" and chronically late.

Don't worry, guys — we're sure having a permanent dressing room and gigantic paycheck will bring her back down to Earth.

Kanye West ring shopping?

Kanye West is looking to put an engagement ring on Kim Kardashian's not-yet-divorced finger, but a gigantic diamond isn't cutting it, says RadarOnline.

Instead, West is planning to combine some of his late mother's favorite jewels into a custom ring — something those close to him aren't happy about. "His friends think it's a terrible idea and are advising him not to give Kim the ring," a source says. "Because it's a gift, it would be difficult for Kanye to ask for it back if they ever split up. They've also reminded him that Kim is not somebody who works hard for her money. She makes millions selling her image."

Excuse us, Team West: Kim may be a sparkly void, but she's our sparkly void. Find your own reality vampire to pick on.

Talking points

Madonna tasteful as always

▶ Madonna

Madonna is coming under fire for using fake guns in her stage show just days after the Aurora, Colo., movie theater massacre, according to the Daily Mail. The singer was reportedly warned by police before her first performance in Scotland not to use the props, but did so anyway. The fake guns used in the show include replicas of an AK-47 assault rifle and a few handguns. But a source close to Madonna insists the singer is just sticking to her principles. "Madonna would rather cancel her show than censor her art," the source tells the Huffington Post. "Her entire career, she has fought against people telling her what she can and cannot do. She's not about to start listening to them now."

John Mayer digs California girls?

Katy Perry may have found a new bad boy to keep her company in the wake of her split from Russell Brand. Less than a week after her divorce from Brand was finalized, Perry was reportedly spotted getting cozy with John Mayer, according to Hollyscoop. A source describes their meeting as very flirty, adding that the two "definitely appeared to be very into each other." Meanwhile, Perry says she plans on taking a somewhat "darker" path for her third album — but not completely. "I would love to just let it be the black box of who I am," she tells the U.K.'s Capital FM. "I'd never devote a whole record to heartbreak. I'm happy, I'm in a good place, I'm looking forward to my future."

Celebrity fun in the sun

Under their red carpet swag, celebrities are sporting pretty stylish bodies, too. Well, at least the ones who alert photographers that they're heading to the beach.

1 Eva Longoria was spotted at a paddle-board lesson in Los Angeles earlier this month.

2 Audrina Patridge has made a career out of looking good in a bikini. The former "Hills" star hosted Foxwoods Resort Casino's "Liquid Sundays" pool party over the weekend.

4 Mischa Barton played it safe on a Jet Ski in Miami over the winter.

LAWRENCE BONK

Square Enix and Nintendo have always had one of those on-again, off-again romances. Back in the NES and SNES days, these two Japanese megacorporations walked arm-in-arm like teenaged lovers. Sony came between them, however, and the PS1 and PS2 eras saw Nintendo bereft with nary a "Final Fantasy" to call its own. Well, uncork the bubbly. Your favorite celebrity couple is back. Square Enix is supporting Nintendo's 3DS in a big way.

Here are two just-released titles.

'Heroes of Ruin'
Console: Nintendo 3DS
Publisher: Square Enix
Grade: ●●●●◍
Do you long for the loot-filled goodness of a "Diablo" title, but your laptop starts hiccuping just by loading Google? Give "Heroes of Ruin" a try. It's a streamlined affair, but all of your favorite addictive game mechanics are firmly in place. Four-player online dungeon exploring and fast-paced combat? Check.

Tons of classes and more than 600,000 items to find or craft? You betcha.

The graphics are serviceable, but not impressive. The game also rewards button-mashing over smart tactics. Still, it's an online-enabled "Diablo" clone on a portable console. That right there is pretty cool.

'Theatrhythm Final Fantasy'
Console: Nintendo 3DS
Publisher: Square Enix
Grade: ●●●●◍
Finally, everyone's favorite JRPG has come to the 3DS. Unfortunately, it's a music game. Wait, don't stop reading. It's a good music game. Think of it as the best parts of something like PaRappa the Rapper with a fancy coat of "Final Fantasy" paint.

The game has you keeping rhythm to all of your favorite tunes from the franchise's history. It shouldn't work, but it does. It's cute, ridiculously addictive and full of inside jokes for the megafan.

The only downside? The game lacks an epic storyline that would have fit the source material like a mythril glove.

FOX-Y LADIES AT TCA

Mariah Carey joins 'Idol,' Britney Spears stages a comeback and Mindy Kaling strikes out on her own

Monday was Fox day at the Television Critics Association press tour in Beverly Hills, Calif. And though "American Idol" is not the unbeatable ratings juggernaut it once was, the singing competition still managed to top the day's TCA headlines.

'American Idol'

In an unnecessarily dramatic display, Fox President of Entertainment Kevin Reilly announced Mariah Carey would be joining the "Idol" judges' table by calling the multiplatinum-selling pop star on his cell phone and putting her on speaker. Carey apologized for not attending in person — Reilly said the deal had been finalized just hours before — but she assured critics she is "so excited to be on 'Idol'" and "can't wait to get started."

Carey is filling one of the seats vacated by judges Steven Tyler and Jennifer Lopez. Reilly had no news on the second new judge, though he insisted "it's 100 percent [confirmed] that Jennifer won't be back to the show."

This was in reaction to a comment "Idol" producer Nigel Lythgoe made hours earlier in a panel for "So You Think You Can Dance," the show he judges. He'd said that Lopez was 99 percent sure she wouldn't be back, but he was hopeful of that 1 percent chance.

'The X Factor'

How does one of the biggest pop stars of the last decade decide to join a relatively new reality TV competition? Apparently, it's all thanks to a makeup artist.

"I've seen the show a couple of times," Britney Spears, new judge on "The X Factor," said of the series, "and I was such a fan of the show. My makeup artist was the makeup artist for Simon [Cowell]. And we talked about [the show] a couple of times ... but really never took it seriously until she went back and she started working for him. Then we just all met up, and it made sense."

Meanwhile, Cowell said Spears was "the No. 1 person I always wanted on one of these shows."

'The Mindy Project'

Viewers who fell in love with "New Girl" last season have another smart, funny, messed up lady to adore on the new sitcom "The Mindy Project," from "The Office" writer and star Mindy Kaling.

Kaling plays Mindy, an OB/GYN who is great at her job, but not so much in her personal life. When asked how she will keep that TV trope fresh, Kaling responded, "It's interesting — there is this cliche. ... But that's also really true of me and all my friends. So you don't want to not do something that's relatable simply because you're worried that it might be cliche."

On "The Office" front, Kaling said she'd return for at least one episode this fall.

Mariah Carey's the newest 'Idol' judge.

'The Mob Doctor'

Grace Devlin (Jordana Spiro) is a genius surgeon — with a family debt to the mob in "The Mob Doctor." The idea of a great doctor living a double-life and stitching up soldiers in the Chicago mob scene may seem far-fetched, and even series creator Josh Berman thought so. But then he found a book about a real mob doctor called "Il Dottore," on which, he says, the series is loosely built.

"The more we dug, we found out how most ... doctors to the mob are motivated by greed," he said. "They get seduced by the mob world. It's not because of the reasons we have in our pilot. Hopefully we're a little bit more idealized version of the mob doctor."

'Ben and Kate'

Also new on the Fox comedy slate is "Ben and Kate," created by Dana Fox and inspired by her brother, whom she referred to as very Ferris Bueller-like in his antics and knack for getting in trouble. Nat Faxon — who won a screenwriting Oscar for "The Descendents" and landed this sitcom the day after the Academy Awards — plays Ben, that wacky brother who becomes a father figure to Maddie (Maggie Elizabeth Jones), the daughter of his single-mom sister, Kate (Dakota Johnson).

"He's a really, really smart guy who intentionally does dumb things all the time," Fox says of her brother and, by extension, the character. But, Fox says, her writing team is acutely aware that some of his actions may veer into the outlandish.

"We're very careful to never make him cross the line — if it goes too far, [viewers will say], 'Ah I'm off the ride, no thank you.' It's really about keeping him grounded. He has a bizarre logic to all of his behavior — he might be a genius."

From oblivion to Oblivion

Berklee band may be new but they're not green In fact, they're Red, and ready to play Lollapalooza next month Cellist talks metal health and the allure of the classic alt-rock fest

RAFAEL PULIDO

Of all the gigs that Berklee student band Red Oblivion will play this summer, one stands out: Lollapalooza.

That's right, the relatively unknown rock quartet is playing the famed summer festival.

"Just after our band formed, we heard that Berklee was going to do a partnership with Lollapalooza," says Eden Rayz, who plays cello (!) in Red Oblivion. "That really got the wheels turning. We were trying to find our sound as quickly as possible to qualify. We wrote around 30 songs in two months — and then dropped most of them. The prospect of Lollapalooza pushed us to get it together much more quickly."

Three songs that weren't axed are found on the band's Paul Kolderie-produced EP, which is headed by the crunchy, punchy '90s-nodding rocker "Nowhere Kids."

Besides Rayz on electric cello, Red Oblivion includes guitarist Emma Torres, singer and bassist Zach Adams and drummer Carson Groenewold. Rayz and Groenewold met as performers in the Berklee Metal String Ensemble and decided to form a band that pushed rock instrumentation forward.

Rayz spent 16 years learning classical cello only to find another calling in high school when she discovered punk and metal.

"I discovered it was more natural for me to be playing rock and metal even using the same technique. I take it from a separate mind-set," she says. "I approach it as if the instrument is naturally in rock 'n' roll, which I'm setting out to prove."

LINDA LABAN
linda.laban@metro.us

Sabbath, bloody Sabbath!

Playing Lollapalooza in the same vicinity as the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Black Keys, Jack White, Florence + the Machine and fellow Berklee alumni Passion Pit doesn't faze Rayz. However, if there's something that has this metal fan gobsmacked, it's being on the same bill as Black Sabbath.

"Oh my God, I was completely freaked out when they reformed! To have them reform is a dream. To play the same festival is insanity to me," she says.

ETHEREAL SUMMER HAIR

We're obsessed with the romantic braided crown that stylist and Redken Creative Consultant Guido Palau created for the Spring '12 Valentino show. With temperatures in the 90s, it's the perfect time to sweep the hair off our sticky necks and into a dreamy updo. We headed to Cutler/Redken Salons in NYC where stylist Jenny Balding gave us a step-by-step tutorial. Warning: You'll need some French braiding skills and patience. Or better yet, find a friend who will come over and do it for you.

Tool of choice

"Spray a dry shampoo — especially if you have fine hair — to your roots and mid-length to add texture to your locks and for some more grip," says Balding. She likes Redken Powder Refresh ($8, www.redken.com).

▶ Pro tips:
1. Start with dirty hair.
2. Ruffle up the braids and pull some pieces out a little.

▶ Stylist Jenny Balding works her magic on Haley Sulka.

Balding's instructions

1 Divide your hair into three sections: the front, the crown and the back. The finer the hair, the thicker the sections need to be.

2 French braid the crown, braiding toward the right ear, and tie with a rubber band.

3 Braid the front section. Start from your left ear and work your way across the forehead until you get to behind the right ear.

4 Once your front braid has reached the right side, connect it with the crown braid.

5 Braid them into the remaining hair. Make sure to braid right down to the very tip.

6 Wrap the braid going from the left to right around your crown and pin.

7 Use three pins on each side and one in the center to secure your braid.

8 As you go through, pull some pieces out at the root to make your braids chunkier. "The messier the braids, the cooler it'll look," says Balding.

App-ealing new fitness apps

Not even the fitness industry is exempt from the explosion of mobile technology. Whether you're one of the thousands preparing for the annual New York City Marathon or just looking for an interactive way to stay healthy, these new fitness apps could be the difference between looking robust and just looking busted.

My Net Diary Diabetes Tracker: The $4 Diabetes Tracker app has a built-in bar code scanner that records the nutrients, calorie count and carb count for the food it inspects; it also helps users keep track of their glucose, insulin, blood pressure, cholesterol and more.

GAIN Fitness 3.5: Why meet with a personal trainer when you could just download one? GAIN Fitness assigns users a virtual trainer who will perform each exercise and coach them through their sets and reps. The free app now boasts yoga and circuit strength-training in addition to lifting, stretching and simple calisthenics.

PaceDJ: If you've ever listened to music and found yourself walking to the beat of the song, you can testify to the motivation and energy it brings. This $2 application — which launched on iPhone last year and is now on Android — allows users to sync their running pace with the tempo of the music on their smartphone, allowing for a steadier experience.

Tax rates straight from Dickens novel

As a percent of GDP, corporate profits are at a 50-year high and corporate taxes are near an all-time low; relative to the average American family, the wealthy have expanded their income advantage tremendously and still have, on average, lower tax rates. Giving further tax relief to these two segments is like serving more food and drink at a riotous feast of sated gluttons, leaving the rest of us standing with empty bowls like Oliver Twist.

GLENN HAYES, KEW GARDENS, N.Y.

Don't give Holmes benefit of fame

Whatever happened to the policy of not giving felons and miscreants the notoriety they seek. Publishing the Colorado shooter's photo, using it as the cover of your product no less, is offensive in that it fulfills the desires of the person who committed the awful crimes. Don't give Holmes any more satisfaction. Just report what happened and maybe, if you must, show photos of the victims, the first responders or even the location —not the sick person who caused all the pain.

CHUCK MCALEXANDER, VIA E-MAIL

Nation in need of divine intervention

With the reality/comedy show going on in government and the recent shooting in Aurora, it's plain and simple what this nation needs and fast: GOD, point blank. People can say what they want and most will probably will laugh at this letter if it's printed, but despite the increase in evil in the world, The Most High is going to win in the end. And I'm not talking about religion, I'm talking about this nation having a personal relationship with the Creator, which are two different things. Religion was created to deceive, separate and divide people and has caused many wars!

OMAR BRANCH, VIA E-MAIL

Of course killer shows no emotion

After reading the headline on today's Metro front page, you stated that "the alleged killer seemed groggy and emotionless." The word emotionless caught my attention. It is obvious to me that anyone that carries out this type of crime has to be a sociopath or something similar, therefore unable to feel any emotions, feelings of others. No one in their right mind would be able to kill and not show remorse. He is a very sick person. Are people that naive that they expect him to show feelings and tears?

WENDE DE GROOT, VIA E-MAIL

Hit Penn State hard with sanctions

RE: "PATERNO NOW JUST ANY OTHER JOE"

I disagree with sports columnist Angelo Cataldi that the NCAA did the right thing. The sanctions placed on Penn State are little more than a slap on the wrist and a pat on the butt.

PSU president Mark Emmert could and should correct that by shutting down the football program for at least this year.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. In your eagerness to start something new, you might not take under consideration all the ramifications. Don't get in over your head.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. It behooves you to be extremely selective regarding those whom you go to for advice. Turning to a friend might not be the smartest thing if he or she isn't any more informed than you are.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Think twice before getting involved with a friend in some sort of financial matter. It might take a longer time to resolve than anybody realized, and you could be stuck with some of the payback.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Because of your sharp intuitive powers, you can often see where things are heading from the get-go. That doesn't mean you'll always be right, though.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. It's quite possible that you'll make an unusually strong impression on others. Just make sure it's not a negative one.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Partial victories won't have much significance in the general scheme of things, so don't kid yourself into believing something is a fait accompli if it's only half-finished.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. If you're not on your toes, it's quite likely that you'll repeat an error very similar to one you recently made, only this time you won't have any excuses.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Do your best to avoid financial gambles and those who are prone to take them. If you don't do so, you're asking for money trouble.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Clarify the rules regarding a partnership arrangement so that no one in the group tries to supersede anyone else.

BE THE MATCH®

DANA-FARBER

Encourages You to Register and Save a Life during African American Bone Marrow Awareness Month

On any given day, thousands of men, women, and children search for a life-saving bone marrow donor. Often there is only one matched donor in the world. Too often, there are none. For African Americans, the challenge can be especially daunting.

Dana-Farber Cancer Institute is encouraging people to help save lives by registering to be a potential donor. African Americans are especially encouraged to donate. Each year, more than 35,000 patients are diagnosed with lymphoma, sickle cell anemia, or other diseases treatable by bone marrow or stem cell transplants. Only 30 percent will find a donor whose tissue type matches their own – typically within their family. The remaining 70 percent must turn to the unrelated donor registry to find a life-saving match.

For African Americans, the difficulties are greater. Because the markers used in matching are inherited, patients are more likely to match someone from their own race or ethnicity. Caucasians who need a transplant have a 70 to 90 percent chance of finding an unrelated donor in the registry. However, of the 10 million members on the Be The Match Registry, only 7 percent are African American. And, since there is greater diversity within this population, African Americans can have more difficulty finding a match than those of other ethnic groups.

Joining the registry is easy and involves completing a registration form and swabbing the inside of your cheek to collect a sample of your cells. You need to be at least 18 years old, able to meet certain health guidelines and willing to donate to any patient in need. Individuals between the ages of 18 and 44 are most urgently needed, since this age group is 10 times more likely to be called as a donor.

The Be The Match Registry of the National Marrow Donor Program at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute recruits potential donors throughout New England, helps organize and run donor registration drives, and educates donors about the registration and donation process. It's also unique – the National Donor Program at Dana-Farber not only recruits donors but also expedites patient transplants. The center facilitates more than 200 adult and pediatric patient transplants each year using marrow or stem cells from volunteer registry members.

"When one of our donors is a match for a patient in need, we get the opportunity to bring that donor through the entire donation process," says Cindy Albert, manager of Stem Cell Donor Services at Dana-Farber. "Knowing there is a patient at Dana-Farber or somewhere in the world anxiously awaiting a second chance at life – and that we can provide that chance – is truly an inspiring and humbling experience."

Dana-Farber and Be The Match Registry are actively recruiting so that all patients – regardless of their ethnicity – are able to receive the transplant they need. The Dana-Farber program focuses recruitment efforts on drives for Dana-Farber patients actively looking for a match, as well as college outreach and education.

"The more people who come forward and register, the greater the chances of these patients receiving the life-saving bone marrow they so desperately need," says Robert J. Soiffer, MD, co-chief of the Stem Cell/Bone Marrow Transplantation Program at Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's Cancer Center. "It's not every day that we get to be heroes."

Astigmatism Correction Now Available
Am I a candidate?

If you have been considering vision correction and were discouraged because you were told you have astigmatism and your correction was not treatable with LASIK, New England Eye Center has fantastic news for you. Not only can we treat Astigmatism with the iLASIK™ procedure, the cornea trained physicians at New England Eye Center now offer the most advanced procedures available to treat a variety of vision correction disorders.

What is astigmatism?

Astigmatism is a condition where vision is blurred by asymmetric steepening of the cornea or crystalline lens. Patients with astigmatism may not only notice blurring of vision at both distance and near, but can also note shadowing or ghosting of images as well. These vision symptoms are caused when light entering the eye is refracted or bent to multiple points in the eye, resulting in an out of focus image. Astigmatism is very common, and occurs in about 1 in 3 people.

Astigmatism can be easily corrected by contact lenses or eyeglasses. However, if glasses or contacts are troublesome, or not tolerated, there is another option. New England Eye Center offers many alternatives to glasses and contacts for the correction of all types of refractive error, including astigmatism. Custom LASIK and PRK are available not only for near and far sightedness, but for the correction of astigmatism as well. For cataract patients, astigmatism can be either treated with incisions made during cataract surgery, or with implantation of advanced lens technology.

Why should I have my Astigmatism treated with a surgical alternative to contacts and glasses?

If left uncorrected Astigmatism can cause eye strain, headaches and difficulties in everyday tasks from reading to working to outdoor activities. While glasses and many contact lenses are on the market to effectively correct astigmatism, if you are uncomfortable in either, it is important for you to know you have options. While glasses are your safest alternative, many people either are not able to tolerate their entire astigmatism correction in eyeglasses, or do not achieve the clear vision they desire or need for everyday living. Contact lenses, worn and cared for properly are a wonderful alternative to glasses. However, contact lenses are not without risks, and are not well tolerated by everyone. Many people are contact lens intolerant, whether due to underlying dry eye, reaction to contact lens solutions, or corneal inflammation or infections due to contact lens wear. For these patients, contact lenses are no longer an option and eyeglasses do not allow for functioning at the highest level.

What other procedures are available to me to correct my vision?

The physicians at New England Eye Center routinely perform LASIK and PRK, however there are lens procedures for patients which can also provide freedom from contacts and glasses. The Visian implantable collamer lens, which has the added benefit of being removable, can treat a wide variety of patients who are nearsighted and it is also a wonderful alternative for patients with dry eye issues or people who do not qualify for LASIK. For patients who have added reading glasses to their vision correction needs, many options are available, including monovision and conductive keratoplasty. For patients with a cataract, intraocular lenses are available that offer improved freedom from glasses at distance, intermediate, and near vision. These include the Crystalens accommodating lens, as well as the Restor and Tecnis multifocal lenses. For our cataract patients with astigmatism, Toric intraocular lenses can be implanted to neutralize their astigmatism.

Supporting someone in an abusive relationship

Domestic violence is a pattern of coercive behaviors by one person to gain power and control over someone they are or have been in a relationship with.

Unfortunately, domestic violence (DV) is quite common with 25% of women[1,2], 8% of men[1] and 1 in 4 LGBTQ-identified people experiencing partner abuse[3] so the chances are high that someone you know are currently or have been in a DV relationship.

Someone you know may be in an abusive relationship if they…

- Seem to be sad or isolated
- Give up on activities they like
- Always check voicemails or texts
- Get upset about being late
- Cancel plans frequently
- Feel pressured to have sex
- Are unable to get sleep because of partner's behavior
- Make excuses for their partner
- Are worried about partner's reaction

Where to start:

- Talk to them in a safe and private space and start by saying:
  - "I care about you and I'm concerned about your safety."
  - "Thank you for sharing with me, it had to be hard for you to tell me."
  - "I believe you."
  - "It's not your fault."
- Be specific about what you have noticed
- Help them form a safety plan by discussing:
  - Who to call: 911 for an emergency, National Domestic Violence Hotline 1-800-799-7233
  - Where to go: friend, neighbor, shelter
  - Things to bring in a small bag: medications, identification, birth certificate and social security card

Do:

- Let them know you are willing to listen and be supportive
- Accept what they tell you without judgment
- Remind them it is not their fault and no one ever deserves to be abused
- Encourage them to seek help—provide the DV hotline and offer to make the call with them

Don't:

- Criticize or blame the victim for the abuse
- Ask or criticize why they stay
- Pressure them to end the relationship
- Fight, talk to, or confront the abuser

If you, or someone you know is in an abusive relationship, call the National Domestic Violence Hotline at 1-800-799-7233

Things to Consider...

If you or someone you know, is thinking of leaving an abusive relationship:

- √ Contact a lawyer about custody and visitation issues.
- √ Open up a bank account in your own name with a safe address.
- √ Consider whether a restraining order would be helpful.
- √ Keep contact info for resources such as lawyers and shelters with a friend.
- √ Gather items and keep in a safe place: Identification, records or important papers, keys, medications, documentation of abuse
- √ Talk to your employer about making calls during work hours.
- √ Talk to childcare providers about who has permission to pick up children.
- √ Remember that calls and internet activity can be tracked.

For support call the National Domestic Violence Hotline at 1-800-799-7233.

IT'S COOL TO EAT FRESH FRUITS AND VEGGIES WHEN IT'S HOT

Fresh fruits and vegetables are easy to find as the weather gets warmer. You can buy lots of different locally grown kinds at area farmers' markets or fruit and vegetable stands. You can also find a large variety of fresh fruits and vegetables in the produce section of your grocery store year round.

By eating a mixture of brightly-colored fresh fruits and vegetables, you and your family will:

- Stay cool when it gets hot, since fruits and vegetables contain a lot of water
- Get lots of the vitamins and minerals that your body needs to stay healthy
- Have more energy from replacing sugary or processed food with fresh foods

And, when you shop at local farmers' markets and fruit and vegetable stands, you'll also:

- Help your community by supporting local farmers/growers
- Create family togetherness when you shop together and discover new healthy food options
- Give your children the chance to learn more about the many kinds of fruits and vegetables that are available

By shopping at a local farmers' market or fruit and vegetable stand, you should also enjoy healthier fresh food since your produce will not have traveled as far or been handled as much as food shipped from a great distance. Plus, often local farms participating in farmers' markets will offer non-produce items such as home-made cheese, jam, and breads, and some will offer free samples for you to try. You can also often find local flowers and plants to buy to brighten your summer lunch or dinner table.

Many Farmers' Markets Accept EBT Cards (SNAP)

While you might think it costs more, sometimes fresh local food can be less expensive because farmers don't have to pay to ship food over long distances like some grocery stores do. And some Massachusetts farmers' markets accept EBT cards from those who qualify for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP). Visit www.massfarmersmarkets.org to learn more.

Our online Wellness Center in the Living Healthy section makes it easy for you to search for farmers' markets throughout Massachusetts. Visit us at ChooseBMCHP.com to find a farmers' market near you.

Fenway's futbol folly?

Red Sox owner's overseas baby comes to Boston for first time ◗ Liverpool arrives while Sox having worst season in recent memory ◗ Should Boston fans worry?

Fenway Park has hosted soccer matches before. In fact, the sport has been played there going back 90 years or so. Pele appeared in 1968. In 2010, Celtic FC defeated Sporting Lisbon.

The next display of the beautiful sport in Boston's most famous sports venue comes with a bit more intrigue.

Not many locals will care one way or another if Liverpool FC gets the better of AS Roma at Fenway tonight (6:30 p.m.). Some will, but not those with an interest in the regular occupants at Fenway, the Red Sox. Those individuals will be eyeing the arrival of Liverpool like a second-grader might with the new kid who comes to school that first day with the best backpack money can buy and a smile that makes the girls swoon.

Liverpool FC, of course, rests under the same umbrella as the Red Sox, the two star entities (along with Boston nemesis LeBron James) of New England Sports Ventures. But it is the new kid on the block and one that locals hope never takes away too much of the attention from what really counts (the Sox winning it all). In much the same way that the owners took a popular but somewhat lacking Boston franchise and made them a powerhouse on and off the field, it wants to do the same with Liverpool, like the Sox a history-rich franchise that was in need of a boost after some years of mediocrity.

The amount of American dollars in millions that John Henry used to purchase Liverpool in November of 2010. It was 81 million more pounds than Tom Hicks paid for it in February 2007.

Nearly two years after the purchase, dreams of a two-headed monster have faded. While the Sox face the distinct possibility of missing the playoffs for the third straight year for the first time since the trio took over, Liverpool has struggled to keep up with rivals both on and off the pitch. It recorded its worst Premier League finish in 18 years in 2011-12 and NESV has not been shy about shaking things up. When the club comes to Fenway it will be doing so led by new manager Brendan Rodgers.

Even James, a shareholder in Liverpool, opined on the matter in a recent interview with the British tabloid the Daily Mail, saying, "Liverpool are a team in a period of transition at the moment, so I don't know what they can achieve."

An NBA star based in Miami partnering with a Boston-based sports investment company and commenting on the state of a soccer team an ocean away. That speaks to the mish-mash of interests in which the Red Sox find themselves these days.

Tonight, they get a first-hand glance at the new kid.

▶ Brent Lillibridge is already an ex-Red Sox after being traded to Cleveland yesterday.

Time for Sox to pull plug?

◗ It has been a consistent struggle for the Red Sox to stay over .500 ◗ Boston makes minor deal yesterday

It could very well be the case that the Red Sox 2012 season peaked last Thursday night considering everything following Cody Ross' towering shot over the monster has been downright disastrous.

Boston lost four straight games heading into last night's game against Texas and its hard-hitting bunch. The team fell below .500 once again and it seemed as though there was a collective shift in thinking on the talk radio airwaves yesterday as fans seem more than ready to waive the white flag on 2012.

2 Number of hits Brent Lillibridge had with the Red Sox. Lillibridge was acquired from the White Sox in the June 24 Kevin Youkilis swap.

Yes, the St. Louis Cardinals won the World Series last season after barely getting to 90 wins in the regular season and earning the NL wild card. But on July 15, 2011, the Cards were still over .500 with a 54-48 record. The Red Sox made the first of what could be many moves in the next week as they traded Brent Lillibridge (who lasted exactly a month with the franchise after being part of the Kevin Youkilis deal) to Cleveland in exchange for minor league reliever Jose De La Torre. It's a move that won't get fans excited anytime soon, but it's a start.

Change is coming for the 2012 Red Sox, sooner rather than later. The only question is whether or not that change is significant or not in the next six days.

Mo' money, mo' condo

A sixth-floor condo in the One Charles building is going for $2.1M So what do you get when you pay that much to own a place?

There's very little schlep to living in a sixth floor condo in the One Charles building. After all, the asking price of $2.1 million should make that perfectly clear. This centrally located ivory tower on South Charles Street is just about in the middle of a circle that includes the Theatre District, the Back Bay, Downtown Crossing and Beacon Hill.

"It's close walking distance to all things Boston has to offer," says the listing agent William Raye of Engel & Volkers Boston. "There's all the shopping, restaurants, the theaters. The Financial District, Beacon Hill and the South End are close by."

But for those longer trips, car owners needn't worry about parking: "The price includes two parking spaces," says Raye.

One Charles, which was built in 2004 by Millennium Partners (who also built the Ritz Carlton nearby), is a full-service elevator building, which means there's a 24-hour concierge, a doorman and a porter. The common areas include a library, media room, conference room and fitness center.

This home is a spacious corner unit with marble entry, herringbone patterned cherry floors and floor-to-ceiling windows with views of the Boston Common. Surprisingly, the condo comes fully furnished — so even that's taken care of.

"The owners had custom built-ins made for this unit, and all the furnishings were purchased specifically for the space," says Raye. "It fits together perfectly."

Roommate code of conduct

More people move in the summer than any other time of year Before you sign a lease with your new Craigslist buddy, read the advice from Rent.com for cohabitating harmony Also, you might want to try to become neater

Before you and your roomie get into one of those silent treatment standoffs because he or she never replaces the toilet paper roll, we suggest you learn how to live in harmony now.

According to Rent.com's recent roommate survey, about half of the respondents (45 percent) admitted to having issues with a current or past roommate. Their biggest pet peeves: a messy mate (20 percent), followed by someone who doesn't pay bills on time (10 percent) and someone who uses things without asking (9 percent).

Rounding out the complaints was a roommate who constantly has people over (6 percent). If you're guilty of one or more of these, it's time to make your roommate a batch of brownies — and clean the bathroom already.

Of the people Rent.com surveyed claim their biggest cohabiting pet peeve is a messy roommate.

Here is Rent.com's advice to cohabitating bliss:

Keep it real

Before you sign a lease, it's important for your roommate to understand your schedule. If you are an "early to bed, early to rise" kind of person, a roommate who works on mixing his DJ tracks at night may not be your best bet.

Divvy the bills

Decide on when and how bills and rent will be paid for before making the roommate bond permanent. For instance, if one person is in charge of utilities, make the other in charge of submitting the rent check each month.

Clean up

As indicated by the survey, keeping clean is a must. It's important to divide cleaning responsibilities so the burden is shared.

Be sure to discuss expectations for cleaning before you sign on the dotted line.

Talk about who will clean what and how often, and what's acceptable in terms of daily and weekly upkeep. METRO

MONKEY BUSINESS

▶ Communication is the key to a happy home.

Talk it out

Working to communicate your needs and expectations to one another is crucial for a happy roommate relationship.

For example, if your roommate is a student and wants to use the kitchen table to study, don't watch TV loudly in the same room during study hours.

Likewise, if you're hosting a small "Bachelorette" season finale party, give your roommate fair warning to make other plans.

Get crafty: DIYs to tackle on a lazy summer afternoon

Bike wheel potholder

Crafty reader Emily Drum knew she hit the jackpot when her neighbor threw out his old bike wheel. The Brooklyn, N.Y. resident used the discarded part to create a handsome, utilitarian, space-saving pot rack. Eat your heart out, Restoration Hardware.

What you need:

- An old bike wheel
- 3 equal pieces of chain cut to just over twice the length you want the wheel to hang from the ceiling (Drum's chains are each 46 inches long, and her wheel hangs about 21 inches from the ceiling.)
- Toggler Heavy-Duty Swivel Hook (includes an anchor that holds up to 60 pounds in a half-inch of drywall)
- S-hooks

EMILY DRUM

▶ This will take you less than an hour to do.

Instructions:

1. Drill a hole in the ceiling using a half-inch drill bit.
2. Install the Toggler hook and anchor per the instructions on the package.
3. Hook one end of a piece of chain on the hook, wrap the chain once around the rim of the bike wheel, and hook the other end on the hook.
4. Repeat with the other two pieces of chain, spacing them out evenly to balance the wheel.
5. Hang s-hooks on the spokes for your pots and utensils.
6. Dust off your prettiest pans and display. METRO

Birdcage planter

Want to grow flowers or herbs in your apartment, but Ms. Kitty keeps eating them? Try keeping your plants in an antique birdcage. Place it on a table or your windowsill, or, for extra cat-proofing, hang it from the ceiling — as long as it's in an adequately sunny space. You can find a cute, inexpensive bird cage at a garage sale, flea market or antique shop. Keep the antiqued look if it suits your decor; or for a more modern twist, strip down the paint and spray on a bold color. METRO

WHEN AN INSPECTION GOES BADLY

By Attorney George Warshaw

You found the home or condo of your dreams but the home inspection was a problem. Can you cancel and get your money back?

Usually, but not always.

It depends on the language of the inspection clause in the offer. There are three kinds I've seen.

What most buyers want is an inspection that is satisfactory to the buyer. If not, then the buyer can cancel and the deposit should be returned.

What most buyers get is a preprinted offer form which permits the buyer to cancel if the inspection reveals serious structural or mechanical defects. That's a tough standard to satisfy. There are many reasons why an inspection may fail or be unsatisfactory that have nothing to do with structural or mechanical defects.

What other buyers get is a preprinted offer form in which the buyer picks an amount of money as the threshold for repairs. If the cost to repair the problems exceed $xxxxx, then you can cancel; if not, then you can't.

In my view, the buyer controls the terms of his or her offer. A buyer has every right to discard a preprinted form and simply make the offer subject to an inspection satisfactory to the buyer.

After all, isn't that what you're expecting in buying a home?
